

How Euna Grants Helped Cache County Manage Over $24M in Federal Funding.

About Cache County, Utah

Situated north of Salt Lake City, Cache County, Utah has over 140,000 residents. Known statewide as a farming and manufacturing hub, it also serves as an outdoor-lover's paradise, boasting several scenic ski areas and national parks within its lush borders.

The County and its subrecipients receive their fair share of federal grants, and they're all managed by one person: Alma Burgess, who serves as Grants Administrator for the County. Whether it's funding for fire services, the Sheriff's office, public works, or other departments, Burgess keeps track of where it's coming from and where it's going.

CHALLENGES

- Decentralized method of searching for grants
- Fractured grants management process left departments feeling siloed
- Lack of subrecipient oversight and missing documentation led to compliance concerns

APPROACH

- Leveraged Euna's Grants Network — a vast, professionally curated grants database with over 10,000 active grants — to more efficiently find relevant funding opportunities
- Used Euna Grants' organization dashboard to easily keep track of grants in progress across all departments
- Baked-in compliance standard guidelines and transparent subrecipient tracking reduced concern over audits and improved transparency

Outcome

As a result of implementing Euna Grants' purpose-built grants management system, Burgess and the community of Cache County were able to streamline and centralize their grants management process for increased efficiency, resulting in:

$24.9M in Funding

using Euna Grants

73 Community Projects

funded with the help of Euna Grants

$5.1M in Subrecipient Awards

awarded through Euna Grants

Euna Grants has been really beneficial. It's a great system to be able to research and track grants — not just pre-award, but post-award and subrecipient grants as well. It's all nice to have it in one centralized place.

Alma Burgess

Grants Administrator for Cache County, Utah

Join the Movement

Click the button to learn more about how Euna Grants works with public sector teams to eliminate manual processes, save time, and increase collaboration — all with the goal of providing better community outcomes.